Unto This Present (1879)

I.

FREE, and yet fast; fast, and for ever free: Led in the line of law to liberty, Sweeping the spirals of invariant space, On flees the little earth around her sun. For ever tending to his fiery breast, For ever tending to the outer cold; So held, unfettered, among her desires From either doom; and of her impotence Driven, where hindrances are least, along The curves of gentler possibility.

O little planet! fated to be free,
And have thy leisure for an era's space
To bud, and bloom, and grow a teeming thing;
Cooling, yet lifewards; darkening into sight
That wakes in many eyes of many lives,
And lights the living into wider light-O little planet! Chariot of mankind,
Force-drifted from impalpability
Into thy rounded being, and the form
Thy children know thee by,-- how sternly kind
Is force, new-differenced as Life, as Love,
As fitness for a freedom yet to be.
Free, and yet fast; fast, and for ever free!
Thy history is written in parable:
Man's tale is one with thine, O little world of man!

II.

I looked into the green sea yesterday And dreamt in outline of that sum of Cause Which brought it there, and me to watch it curl Its never sleeping mystery to my feet.

Although so far agone as now appears Like never, yet I think there was an hour Down the dim reaches of a cosmic Past, 'Ere the beginnings of the growth of things, When Fact stayed, poised and centred everywhere; And for one pregnant moment of suspense The awful Infinite had nought to do:--When universal forces nowhere clashed, And all through space hung equal formlessness: When, wrecked, some all-dissolved, older Past Yielded its untired atoms for new work-Or play--at systems churning; till there went Slow, doubtful whirlings through immensity, And sameness grew new focussed, here or there, With glimmering, gassy nuclei. So, anon, These, settling into fluid balls of fire, Flung forth, all wildly spinning into space, Planets, and these, all spinning, flung their moons; Until, among an unquessed myriad more This little thing we live to call our world Grew individual, and puny shone Among the millions: thence, self-centred, rolled, An island of gleaming chaos through the cycled years. The young world's radiance ebbed away to night,

And a slow-settling darkness veiled her curves As she a vaporous mantle for awhile Drew round her broodingly. And in that gloom The mystery, Motion, learned a strange new art In subtle particles. Change after change Smaller and stiller grew, and more complex As Life began in the darkness. For 'twas then Under a heaven all murky with the breath Of young creation rising hot and thick, Sprung that, which, lighted, had been loveliness. Fern-forests, haply, at the steaming poles Spread to the darkness beauty unbeheld, And forms most gracious in the eye of day Were born unheralded, and died in night Nor so were wasted. What though living eyes That turn ethereal guiverings into light And use the light to find out loveliness-Not yet were focussed from a vaguer force:--Men, retrospective, in this later age, Learn, by the trace of what they never saw, A lesson worth the learning. Let it pass.

Dawn conquered even the long primeval

night,
The blackness thinned, and wept itself away,
And let the light through from the parent sun;
And life began to know itself as life
In sentient things that joyed in some degree.
New inter-adaptation everywhere
Among material bent on issuing
At last in that supremest noblest thing
Achieved by all that has been—Consciousness!
The being who not only lived a life,
Loved, Joyed, and suffered, slept, and woke again,
But noted it, and recognized himself,
And found some words, and said "I am a man."

IV.

In yon far distance, where the sea and sky Make of two meeting edges one thin line. A boundary seems where yet no boundary is. Being persists, and gradual, All aspects melt in oneness as we move, And spite of all our severing, ill-fit names Cause, as effect, retains its force unspent: One fact grows smoothly on through changing lights, Stable alone in instability, Unchangeable in constant changefulness.

In thine own piteous, piteous ignorance Break not the calm, continuous tale of growth Told by the tacit truthfulness of things With theory of breach. O petty man! Pause with thy rounded story, in mistrust
Of its full-bloom completeness! In the face—
The awful face--of deep, unfinished life
Cast thy neat sketch of things aside awhile;
Forget thy need of headings to thy page,
Or final flourish hinting all is said.
Learn of thy planet home, man-dazzled man!
The life of man is not the end of things.

For, not till earth hid all her fires away, And gave but borrowed splendour to the night, Knew she of greater glory, And, in her children's vision, learnt to see the stars.

٧.

Strong, sanely conscious, sweet Philosophy! I see her dealing with the fevered screams Of angry, over certain ignorance; She measures men by what they tend to be, Endures all honest lies right patiently, Knows them for lies, but knows she knows them so By knowledge that would make the liar true Could he lay hold of it: unseeing one!

Grand, unrebellious sane Philosophy!
Crowned and calm I see her sit aloft,
Upon the apex of things knowable;
Her heart the stiller that it is so vast;
Her deed emergent from her gravest thought
As it illumes, and tempers to the fact
The deepest of her feeling. And around
Above her spreads the measureless abyss
Time, both ways endless:--all-ways endless, space.

O strongly patient, fair Philosophy!
She reads the midmost truth between extremes,
Dreams of the far point whither truths converge,
And, with a question in her thoughtful smile,
Ponders the poetry of paradox.
How highest knowledge waxes negative,
How he who soars the farthest in his thought
Basks in a beatific ignorance,
Knows by his knowledge he can never know,
Sees by the light of sight that he is blind,
And loves the largeness of the total sum
That lured him to be ignorant ignorant and wise.

O just, harmonious Philosophy!
She links and interlinks the sciences,
Finds the coherence of a universe,
And oneness in the varied, wide-lived All;
Reads in a lump of dirt the very law
That rules the being of society,
Kinship between the atoms and the suns,
And reason for a virtue foreshadowed in a clod.

Time, both ways endless:--all-ways endless, space.

There is a sense in which the universe Is pivoted upon a molecule;
There is a sense in which eternity
Hangs on each moment
Read that sense reversed.
The softest dimple in a baby's smile
Springs from the whole of past eternity;
Tasked all the sum of things to bring it there,
And so was only barely possible;
Yet 'twas so one and equal with its cause
'Twould need that whole of past eternity
Cancelled and changed, and every motor force
And every atom through infinitude.
Set otherwise agoing, to hinder it.

The future lies potential in the Now;
The Necessary is the Possible;
The two but differing names for one stiff fact
That fact, the being of whatever is.
Is this dogmatic? It is the normal voice

Soughing breezes, and singing birds; It comes to me across distant silences Of interstellar vacancy at night; It comes to me from human influence Drifted through centuries, half-unperceived; And in it is an all-embracing Code-And in it is an all-inspiring Creed-In what has been man learns the law of life, Finds Revelation written as Genesis.

VII.

But now--what says Philosophy of Self? What thinks her follower of the man he is? Can he, in presence of the symphony That rolls around him, played by viewless cause On suns for instruments with Life for key, And the For Ever we can only name As metronome, to beat out rhythmic bars Great æons long, in number, numberless—Can he revert to his small destiny, As worth a moment's stopping of his ears While that sweet thundering of the huge "Not Self" Challenge him to listen while he may?

Aye; for his egotism is not killed But only stunned by vastness: now forgot In the strong consciousness of larger things, But yet, anon assertive; full of rights; Measuring worth by "What is that to me?" And so we look about us for a god Whom we may bind in trust to work our welfare out.

VIII.

The tacit flux of unexplaining fact
That deals one recompense to one offence
Whether we call the doer "fool," or "knave;"—
The steady tendency that draws the child
Playing too near a precipice to death
And holds in safety every wretched life
That fails of chancing on the way to die;-This tacit fact, this steady tendency
Breeds our experience, and makes us wise;
Breathes on our wisdom then, and makes us good.

O man! thou mad! thou blind! thou selfengrossed! Let thy poor blindness be chastised to sight; Grow acquiescent in the least award
Of Nature's fine impartiality;
Learn that what is must measure what thou dost,
That on thy knowledge hangs thy highest fate,
And all thy virtue grows of cosmic growth.

IX.

Daily we die, eternally to live, Each in the measure of his deathlessness. In the undying life of that strong thing That once was chaos, and that shall be God, But now is Man, and needs the lives of men To learn its being,--weave its future by. Freedom is born of fetters; joy, of pain. For he who feels the gain of greater things In his own loss, makes of his loss a gain, And masters so the stern necessity That so apportioned. When thy will is one With what must be, with or without thy will, Thy will grows helpful, and thine act is free.

For mastery is service perfected, And, being won, yields back obedience To laws of larger life. 'Tis thus we grow And feel a world-pulse thrill our hopeful soul, And feel our bark of life lift on the wave, With progress, joyous, sure and palpable.

Free, and yet fast; fast, and for ever free! Lured by a love-like law in lines of liberty. Freedom is born of fetters; joy, and pain.

X. WHITHER?

THROUGH the fathomless peace of the starlight,
Through the feverish travail of mind,
Through the love of the live heart within me,
I search,--and this ever I find:

Totality, busy creating,
Through being, the law that I see;
A universe steadily working
The work that shall render it free.

When the patience of law universal
Shall issue in mastery of law,-When the freedom that grows of the "must be"
Shall reign in its infinite awe.
When virtue is lost in its issue,
When sweetly hath blossomed man.
The fruit - Totality's travail-The ultimate rest shall be "GOD."
